

January 25, 2018

The Oral Roberts University Library is pleased to announce the recent acquisition of two new databases accessible, with a third coming soon. The ones available now are:

- The Digital Karl Barth Library
The Barth Library contains the original German corpus as well as some English translations, including all of his Church Dogmatics, which is available here. For a list of the document types, see here. To read more about the database, go here.

- Twentieth Century Religious Thought: Christianity
To see a list of the 306 titles presently included full text in this database, go here (search the library catalog for the title, "Twentieth Century Religious Thought: Volume 1, Christianity") or in the database look under "Browse" and select "All Works," and then "Print Works." Then browse the list to see what is available. Some of the authors include:
 - Balthasar
 - Bloesch
 - Boff
 - Bonhoeffer
 - Bulgakov
 - Bultmann
 - Cone
 - Gutiérrez
 - Hauerwas
 - Lonergan
 - Lubac
 - Moltmann
 - The Niebuhrs
 - Pannenberg
 - Schüssler Fiorenza
 - Sobrino
 - Torrance, Thomas
 - Troeltsch

Please note also:

- You may access the full text of a desired book by clicking its title and then "View Table of Contents."
- The collection includes complementary archival resources as well as bibliographic information of works in other volumes of the database that have to do with Islam and Judaism.
- The database is not yet complete, so more titles will be added in time.

The e-books in these collections are quite different from those in EBSCO or ProQuest (Ebook Central), but the page numbers are clearly indicated, the bibliographic information is easy to find, and each book/section is searchable. Also, the text size is easily adjusted by using Ctrl+ or Ctrl-.

I hope you are as pleased with these new acquisitions as we are in the Library.

Sally Jo Shelton, PhD, Theological Librarian
Associate Professor of Learning Resources
918 495-6902; sshelton@oru.edu